b) Is Iván creative?
Yes, he is.
c) What are Verónica and Juan like?

Let's Identify the Needs to Determine the Services

1. Individually, without forgetting you are part of a community, make a collage that shows the activities that your family likes to do and that promote a healthy cohabitation.
   a) Develop your creativity and imagination! Use different materials, like magazines, drawings, stickers, leaves, and flowers.

- The sculpture is important because it helps people understand child migration.

6. Reflect on the previous activity. Identify your agreements or disagreements with the opinions of your classmates.

Vocabulary

1. Individually, but considering you are part of a community, unscramble the sentences.

Let's Retrieve

As you have already noticed, opinions may differ. This is when debating begins.

It is possible for us to have similar or different opinions when we talk about certain topics, for example, when we talk about movies, cartoons, or when we look at works of art. This is why we can discuss and exchange opinions through dialogue and argument.

1. In communities and being supportive, discuss the following questions and write your answers.

Nayeli García García, ESTADO DE MÉXICO

2. With the help of your teacher, choose a topic that is of interest to you and that you can discuss. Consider the following guidelines:
   a) It must be a current topic that allows you to mention the advantages and disadvantages of something.
   b) It must be possible to develop more points of view based on it.
   c) It must be approachable from different perspectives.

3. Individually, considering everyone else, describe some features of the crocodile.

4. In communities, compare your crocodile's descriptions. Mention the differences.

Let's Retrieve

1. Individually, without forgetting that you are part of a community, prepare a presentation about yourself. In your notebook, write a five-line paragraph. Mention some of your characteristics, either physical or related to your personality.
   a) When you finish, read it to the classroom community.

2. In communities, compare your presentations. Mention at least four differences in how these descriptions were given.

Nayeli García García, ESTADO DE MÉXICO

3. Look for descriptions as a way of familiarizing yourself with this type of text so you can start describing an object.
   a) Read the following descriptions carefully and give your opinion about them:
      - My notebook is green. It has pictures on it and it is on the desk.

Let's Refocus and Continue

1. It is time to share with your classroom community the description you made.
   a) In communities, talk about the words and resources you used to make your description. How did you adapt them to the theme?

   b) List the elements of the descriptive phrases you used to produce your first draft.

   c) As you work together, make any necessary changes to your description. Consider these changes you may want to make:
   - I will change the subject. Now I will talk about...
   - I will use a different device. It will be...
   - I will leave those elements of descriptive phrases, because...

   d) If necessary, review the content of this project again.
   - Continue to improve your descriptions and rewrite as necessary.
   - With the help of your teacher, review your progress.

   e) If possible, translate your description into Mexican Sign Language or into the Indigenous language spoken in your community.
   - You can look for references in dictionaries or ask a bilingual person for help with the translation.

2. Remember to include the corresponding references and credits. In assembly, present your descriptions, discuss them, and make notes at the end of your readings, guided by the following sentences:

Grammar

1. Analyze the following grammar explanation. Pay close attention to the examples. If you have questions, ask your teacher for help.

Reported Speech with Said

Reported speech (or indirect speech) is the reporting of what someone else said using your proper words, but without changing the meaning of what was said.

In reported speech, the main verb usually "goes back" a tense. For example:

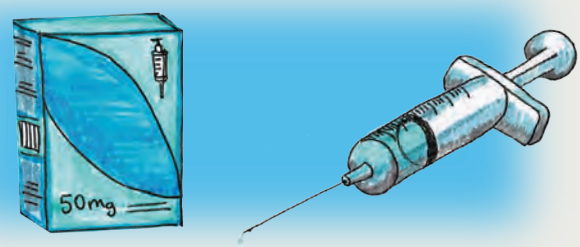

Direct Speech	Reported Speech
Simple Present John said, "I feel sick."	Simple Past John said (that) he felt sick.
Present Progressive Anna said, "I am taking medicine."	Past Progressive Anna said (that) she was taking medicine.
Simple Past Susan said, "I went to the doctor."	Past Perfect Susan said (that) she had gone to the doctor.

2. Rewrite the sentences using reported speech.

a) Adriana said, "I feel a toothache."

b) Mercedes said, "I feel pain in my heart."

c) Mary said, "I need a medical check-up."

Nayeli García García, ESTADO DE MÉXICO

Answers:
a) Adriana said (that) she felt a toothache.
b) Mercedes said that she felt pain in her heart.
c) Mary said (that) she needed a medical check-up.
